

Channeling vs. Mediumship

“At the highest level, what sets my channeling apart from mediumship is the source of the messages— who I’m connected with and receiving guidance/messages from.”

Channeling:

Receiving guidance, direction and answers from my guidance team to business and life situations, specific to you. Messages are prescriptive and probability predictive. Most questions are answered before my clients ask them; I can ask for clarity and additional information about specific subjects the team addresses.

Mediumship:

Receiving messages of love, healing from loved ones who passed, and proof that they are still with us, just in a different form. All of these messages are evidence based, and like Channeling, I can ask for clarity and additional information, about topics your loved one’s address.
